Husqvarna weed eater 525lst

If you've checked in with us recently, you might know that we recently got the chance to test out 10 new weed eaters for our Best Gas-Powered String Trimmer Shootout. We ran all of these trimmers through a series of tests to see which ones presented the best power, fuel economy, ergonomics, feature sets, and value. The results might surprise you. In any case, we're taking a closer look at our overall 3rd-place finisher, the Husqvarna 525LST. This brand has been churning out quality OPE for quite some time, so this string trimmer's final position in our shootout didn't come as any great shock. It generated a lot of torque for some really quick cut times, and it strung together some really great features as well. Ergonomics While weight doesn't paint the total picture of any particular tool's ergonomics, with string trimmers, a lighter weight goes a long way. Lugging around a 15 lb string trimmer probably isn't a big deal on the first lawn of the day, but you'll feel it by the eighth. And, it just so happens that Husqvarna, in this case, makes one lightweight string trimmer. The 525LST, with fuel in the tank, weighs in at 12 lbs 3 oz. This was the lightest string trimmer we tested. It ought to tempt the Pro to some degree or another, based on that fact alone. Noise also factors into a string trimmer's comfortability. After all, no one wants tinnitus because of their string trimmer (although everyone should wear hearing protection anyway). We measured the Husqvarna 525LST sound levels at the ear, and then again from 50 ft away. At the ear, this trimmer registers 98 dB(A), and 74 dB(A) at 50 ft. These measurements fell into the better end of the middle of the pack. As far as actual, traditional ergonomics go, we found the Husqvarna 525LST to be pretty comfortable from a tactile perspective. It has rubberized handles and it's not so short that too many of you will need to stoop over to use it. The throttle trigger does feel a little flimsy, which brings up some durability concerns. But from an ergonomic standpoint, it's really well-balanced and easy to use. Fuel Efficiency One of the tradeoffs for a lighter overall weight comes from sacrificing fuel capacity. The Husqvarna 525LST holds 17.25 oz of fuel, falls just barely short of the average of all the trimmers we tested. However, this really shouldn't scare anyone away from this model, as on a full tank, it will still run for almost 45 minutes. To break it down, in our 8 oz runtime test, the Husqvarna ran for 20:36. This earned it an 8th-place finish in our shootout. With a full tank, it finished in 5th place with a runtime of 44:25. It's safe to say that the Husqvarna 525LST doesn't necessarily crush it in the fuel efficiency department, but as we'll see later, there's another trade-off coming. To keep everything fair in our shootout, we used TruFuel Premix and 4-Cycle Fuel in all of our string trimmers. Engineered Fuel - TruFuel Premix and 4-Cycle Fuel Feature Set A string trimmer that just gets the job done is fine, but a string trimmer that makes getting that job done more easily is even better. That's why we like tools with solid feature sets. The Husqvarna 525LST doesn't disappoint in this department. It has a serviceable head, an auto-on switch, and an automatic choke. The air filter can be accessed pretty easily as well. The trimmer head features bump feeding, and while there are trimmers out there with better line fill systems, this one wasn't awful. You still have to take it apart to load up more line, but the process for doing this isn't a total nightmare. Features a special, high-torque bevel gear so the trimmer can work parallel to the ground for a high-capacity swath and superior cutting performance Easy access standalone starter Robust construction and easy to maintain All designed to give you trouble-free use Powerful, efficient trimmer Heavy-duty clutch and drive shaft Comfort handles for easy control The engine and starter have been designed so the machine starts quickly with minimum effort Easily adjustable soft-grip handle for optimum comfort Powerful X-Torq engine technology Remember that tradeoff we mentioned in the fuel efficiency category? Here's where the Husqvarna 525LST makes up for its "meh" fuel economy because it shines in the power and performance category. We tested our string trimmers in a 5' x 5' square of both regular grass, and then again in thick, overgrown Bahia grass. In the lighter stuff, the 525LST finished in joint 4th-place with an average clearing time of 8.7 seconds. But, in the really thick grass, Husqvarna's trimmer comes alive. It averaged a clearing time of 10.9 seconds, finishing in 1st-place. This makes some sense, as the Husqvarna 525LST features the company's x-Torq engine technology and a high-torque 2:1 gear ratio on the trimmer head. If you find that your applications would benefit from more torque, the 525LST should fit the bill. For all string trimmers in our shootout, we used .095 Echo Black Diamond Trimmer Line. Echo Black Diamond Trimmer Line Review Value The Husqvarna 525LST retails for $339, which falls into the middle of the pricing spectrum. But, in a world where you generally get what you pay for, with this string trimmer, you're paying for some great features and a whole lot of power. It also comes with a 2-year limited warranty for a little extra value in the "peace of mind" department. The Bottom Line For Husqvarna loyalists, the 525LST is kind of a no-brainer. We know plenty of lawn Pros who stick to the brand exclusively because their product line tends to run well and is easy enough to service. We suspect that this model will fall right into line here. But, what's impressive about the Husqvarna 525LST is the torque. Basically, this string trimmer can get through anything you could reasonably expect from a Pro-level string trimmer, and it can do it really quickly. For those guys who've flirted with the idea of buying into the Husqvarna line, this string trimmer makes a pretty compelling argument to go ahead and try them out.
